

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A variable-directivity antenna comprises an omnidirectional antenna element, a transmission line
5 connected to the antenna element, and an electric field adjusting structure provided in a boundary region between the antenna element and the transmission line. The electric field adjusting structure is configured to change electric field
10 distribution of the transmission line to a desired direction.